Dag Sandart specialises in intellectual property law, mainly in patent, copyright and trademark law. Dag has since 1980 acquired a very comprehensive experience of assisting Swedish and foreign clients with contract negotiations, drafting of contracts and handling of disputes concerning intellectual property rights (IP).

The contract negotiations and contracts often concern licensing of IP, acquisition or joint ownership of such rights, and research collaborations. The patent litigations mainly concern the pharmaceutical and biotech fields but can also concern mechanical and electronic patents or other technical fields. Within copyright the disputes often concern the rights to images and works of applied art. Trademark matters typically concern infringement in Swedish and European trademarks, and trademark applications. On several occasions Dag has acted as coordinator for clients whose patent and copyright disputes take place in a number of European jurisdictions.

Dag is also frequently active within the regulatory field for foodstuffs and pharmaceuticals, and within the area of mergers and acquisitions between small and medium size enterprises. These clients are mainly found within manufacturing industry, advertising and media agencies.

Dag Sandart is recognised as one of Sweden's leading individuals within Intellectual property in several specialist guides.

Dag Sandart is called a "market-leading patent lawyer" who is admired for his ability to handle a broad range of commercial and contentious IP mandates, and receives particular plaudits for his patent infringement expertise. One respondent enthuses that Dag Sandart is "a top-notch IP lawyer with a strong client focus."
